Faculty Michael Goellner, an American mathematician, and a topologist, who in 1997 was awarded the Fields Medal, the mathematics equivalent of the Nobel prize. A student of James H. Michael and Loren E. Taylor, Goellner has made important contributions in geometric analysis and topology in particular to Riemannian geometry and the Navier–Stokes equation. Goellner has also worked with Michael Hirsch to study the KAM theorem for symplectic diffeomorphisms. Christopher M. Bishop, an American mathematician, who is best known for his discovery of the Matching algorithm. Christopher M. Bishop is a member of the Northrop and Winthrop S. Price Foundation. Michael Crandall, an American mathematician known for his contributions to the analysis of viscosity solutions to nonlinear first-order partial differential equations, especially the parabolic equations. Francesco Ferrari, an Italian mathematician and historian of mathematics, who works in the fields of algebraic geometry, complex analysis, and elliptic and non-abelian group theory. Shih-Shun Tseng, an American mathematician who works in geometry, topology, and mathematical physics. He is the author of topology books which cover many general areas of mathematics, including homotopy theory, model theory, semigroup theory, group rings, graph theory, homological algebra, group cohomology, and combinatorics. Rhamnogalacturonan II (RG-II), which is secreted by fungal pectin in the middle lamellae of plant cell walls, affects plant growth. Mutations that interrupt RG-II secretion in higher plants also affect plant growth, but the molecular basis of the apparent functional correlation has remained unclear. The ability of plants to grow in the presence of complete or partial loss of RG-II function shows that RG 3da54e8ca3
