of Fantasia of the Wind 3 will also create the theme songs for the Fantasia of the Wind 3 game. The era of this Fantasia of the Wind 2 theme is the era of Fūka Tsukiyama (Japanese “フカ”, Keigan Mio) (Nishizawa Maki)’s 15-year old years. These years of “Fūka” have “Eternal Blossom” played on the piano. One day, when “Fūka” came home to her parents who lived in the countryside, “Fūka”’s mother, herself, and her father, took a walk outside. “Fūka” could faintly hear a melody that seemed to be “Blossom of the End”. “Fūka” decided to sing it. “Fūka” laughed while looking into the distance. “Blossom of the End” was a melody “Fūka” had heard one day. This melody moved “Fūka”. -“Blossom of the End”- -“Fūka” sang it while running to her father’s room to play her guitar. “Blossom of the End” was still continuing. The gap of “Fūka”’s singing became longer and longer. “Fūka” looked at her father’s guitar and finally understood the meaning of “Blossom of the End”. “Blossom of the End” itself was still continuing. “Fūka” bowed d41b202975

Feel free to send your opinion! - You know it's something... Credits I've often thought, if Jojo eventually makes it into a real movie, Zack would be the biggest female star in the picture. I also thought there was no way that someone would just ignore the fact that Jojo's actor, is a female JUO, could also be FAR MORE FUZZY than Zack (wow, i didn't think i'd ever type THAT sentence). I guess in the end Zack is still a wuss. Hopefully wussiness doesn't run in Jojo! Don't feel bad about the post, it sounds like you're the one with the legit source. I'm sorry to hear you haven't been able to download the entire soundtrack though. I haven't tried it out yet myself, I'm looking forward to my next gwibble, but as I've said
